Objective: This being the institution’s first organized cricket fixture for its women players, the match between Shakti and Veera was planned around the following objectives: 1. To introduce cricket as a viable and accessible extracurricular sport for female students, widening the range of organized sporting avenues available to women on campus. 2. To help participants develop foundational cricketing skills, including correct batting stance and shot execution, line-and-length bowling, clean fielding, and quick running between the wickets. 3. To familiarize players with the basic tactical elements of cricket, such as field placement, bowling changes, and batting order, laying the groundwork for more informed decision-making in future matches. 4. To cultivate patience, composure, and disciplined temperament among players, given the longer and more situational nature of cricket compared to faster team sports. 5. To establish a welcoming, low-pressure environment in which students with little or no prior cricketing background could build confidence and consider taking up the sport more seriously.

Outcome: As the institution's inaugural women's cricket fixture, the match produced the following outcomes:

- Growing Interest: The event generated visible curiosity and enthusiasm for cricket among female students, several of whom had not previously considered the sport, indicating strong potential for a dedicated women's cricket unit going forward.
- Skill Foundation: Participants gained practical, first-hand exposure to core cricketing techniques, including batting stance, bowling action, and fielding positioning, that had until then been largely unfamiliar to most of them.
- Early Tactical Awareness: Players began to grasp basic in-match strategy, such as adjusting field settings and rotating bowlers, giving them a working understanding of how tactical decisions shape the course of a cricket match.
- Improved Temperament: The extended format of the game required players to stay patient and composed across overs, helping them develop the mental discipline that distinguishes cricket from shorter, faster-paced sports.
- Encouraging Environment: The relaxed, supportive atmosphere of the match allowed several first-time players to overcome initial hesitation, gain confidence with bat and ball, and express interest in continuing with the sport.

Description of the Event / Activity -

Marking the institution's first structured cricket fixture for its women players, a match between the Shakti and Veera Girls Teams was organized by Storm Breakers at the cricket ground of Bengal College of Engineering and Technology as part of the extra-curricular sports calendar for the 2024-25 academic session. The event was conceived to introduce female students to organized cricket, build core batting, bowling, and fielding skills, and encourage wider participation of women in the sport. Given that many of the participants were engaging with formal, competitive cricket for the first time, the match unfolded as a mix of enthusiastic effort and gradual familiarization with the game's format, with both sides contributing steady batting performances, improving bowling spells, and increasingly alert fielding as the overs progressed. The occasion offered participants valuable first-hand exposure to organized cricket and left them motivated to continue developing their game.

- The match was conducted over a limited number of overs per side, officiated by appointed umpires who also explained key rules where necessary to first-time players.
- Scorers maintained a run-by-run record of the innings, helping players understand how individual contributions built into the team's overall total.
- Faculty members and student volunteers assisted with pitch preparation, equipment arrangement, and the overall coordination of the fixture.
- A modest but engaged group of students and faculty gathered to watch the match, cheering on both teams as they took their first steps into organized cricket.
- The event concluded with faculty coordinators appreciating the enthusiasm and willingness of the participants to take up a new sporting discipline.
